

Chief Judge Leadership Program

September 11-13, 2013

School of Government, Chapel Hill, NC

Learning Outcomes

- Introduce chief district court judges to emotional intelligence, a tool that equips people with practical skills to help them manage their emotional reactivity to change, daily pressures, and people and events beyond their control. It also teaches people how to become more balanced - focusing on what's important and what they can control - their perceptions - in the midst of organizational change.
- Introduce simple, user-friendly tools and techniques judges can use in the moment to improve their communication skills, personal and team effectiveness, and productivity.
- Discussion of current judicial issues.
