

CONTRACTS--ISSUE OF UCC REMEDY--BUYER'S DAMAGES UPON JUSTIFIABLE REVOICATION OF ACCEPTANCE.

The (state number) issue reads:

"What amount of money damages is the plaintiff entitled to recover from the defendant for breach of contract after justifiably revoking acceptance of the (name good)?"

If you have answered the (state number) issue "Yes" in favor of the plaintiff, the plaintiff is entitled to recover nominal damages even without proof of actual damages. Nominal damages consist of some trivial amount such as one dollar in recognition of the technical damage resulting from the breach.

The plaintiff may also be entitled to recover actual damages. On this issue the burden of proof is on the plaintiff. This means that the plaintiff must prove, by the greater weight of the evidence, the amount of damages sustained as a result of the breach of contract after justifiably revoking acceptance of the (name good).

The law provides that where a buyer justifiably revokes his acceptance of a (name good), the buyer may cancel the contract but, whether or not he cancels, he may also recover so much of conforming good by making a reasonable purchase of a substitute the plaintiff reasonably covered for the non-conforming good, the plaintiff may also recover the difference between the cost of the substitute (name good) and the contract price.]³ [Contract-Market Measure. A buyer may recover damages for the seller's non-conforming good. To determine such damages, you must first find the market price⁴ of the (name good) at the buyer's security interest is a self-help recovery and must be credited to the seller.

⁶Note that the literal language of N.C.G.S. §25-2-711(1) limits these expenses to situations where non-conforming goods are rightfully rejected. However, there is no reason not to permit these types of expenses to be recovered where the plaintiff has justifiably revoked acceptance. See *William D. The plaintiff's damages are to be reasonably determined from the evidence presented. The plaintiff is not required to prove with mathematical certainty the extent of the financial injury in order to recover damages. Thus, the plaintiff should not be denied damages simply because they cannot be calculated with exactness or a high degree of mathematical certainty.
However, an award of damages must be based on evidence which shows the amount of the plaintiff's damages with reasonable certainty. You may not award any damages based upon mere speculation or conjecture.

Finally, as to this (state number) issue on which the plaintiff has the burden of proof, if you find by the greater weight of the evidence the amount of damages sustained by the plaintiff for breach of contract after justifiably revoking
