

ADMISSIONS.

If you find from the evidence that the defendant has admitted a fact relating to the crime charged in this case, then you should consider all of the circumstances under which it was made in determining whether it was a truthful admission and the weight you will give to it.

