 DEFAMATION—LIBEL ACTIONABLE PER QUOD—PRIVATE FIGURE—MATTER OF PUBLIC CONCERN.
 General Civil Volume
 Replacement June 2011

NOTE WELL: This instruction¹ applies when the trial judge has determined as a matter of law² that: (1) the statement is subject to two interpretations, one of which is defamatory and one of which is not; or the statement is not libelous³ on its face, but is capable of a defamatory meaning when extrinsic evidence is considered;⁴ (2) the plaintiff is a private figure and (3) the subject matter of the statement is of public concern.⁵

NOTE WELL: A “Yes” answer to this issue entitles a plaintiff to an instruction on actual damages. Punitive damages are allowed only upon a showing of actual malice. See N.C.P.I. Civil—806.85; see generally, N.C.P.I.—Civil 806.40 (“Defamation—Preface”), nn.29 and 30 and accompanying text. Presumed damages are not available. See N.C.P.I.—Civil 806.40 (“Defamation—Preface”), nn.33 and 34 and accompanying text.

The (state number) issue reads:

“Did the defendant libel the plaintiff?”

A libelous statement is one which (select the appropriate alternative):

[charges that a person has committed an infamous crime.⁶ I instruct you that (state

¹ For an introduction to this category of defamation, see N.C.P.I.—Civil 806.40 (“Defamation—Preface”) nn.4-5 and accompanying text.

² See Bell v. Simmons, 247 N.C. 488, 495, 101 S.E.2d 383, 388 (1958) (“It is noted: ‘(1) The court determines whether a communication is capable of a defamatory meaning. (2) The jury determines whether a communication, capable of a defamatory meaning, was so understood by its recipient.’” (quoting Restatement of the Law of Torts, § 614)); see also N.C.P.I.—Civil 806.40 (“Defamation—Preface”), n.11.

³ “Under the well established common law of North Carolina, a libel per se is a publication by writing, printing, signs or pictures which, when considered alone without innuendo, colloquium or explanatory circumstances: (1) charges that a person has committed an infamous crime; (2) charges a person with having an infectious disease; (3) tends to impeach a person in that person’s trade or profession; or (4) otherwise tends to subject one to ridicule, contempt or disgrace.” Renwick v. News & Observer Publishing Co., 310 N.C. 312, 317, 312 S.E.2d 405, 408-09 (citing Flake v. Greensboro News Co., 212 N.C. 780, 787, 195 S.E. 55, 60 (1937)).

⁴ Libel actionable per quod is comprised of those publications “which are not obviously defamatory, but which become so when considered in connection with innuendo, colloquium and explanatory circumstances.” Ellis v. Northern Star Co., 326 N.C. 219, 223, 388 S.E.2d 127, 130 (1990) (quoting Flake v. Greensboro News Co., 212 N.C. at 785, 195 S.E. at 59).

North Carolina also recognizes a “middle-tier libel” when a statement is “susceptible of two reasonable interpretations, one of which is defamatory and the other is not.” Id. Although middle-tier libel may differ technically from libel actionable per quod the instructions for libel actionable per quod are appropriate for jury instruction purposes in a middle-tier libel claim.

⁵ See Mathis v. Daly, ___ N.C. App. ___, ___, 695 S.E.2d 807, 811 (2010) (stating that whether speech addresses a matter of public concern will be determined by its context, form and content as evidenced by a reading of the whole record; and that factors tending to show a matter is of public concern include, but are not limited to, national news coverage of the matter, discussion of the matter at government and academic meetings).

⁶ N.C. Gen. Stat. § 14-3(b) permits punishment of misdemeanors constituting “infamous crimes.” However,

[charges a person with having an infectious disease. I instruct you that [state infectious disease, i.e., HIV/AIDS, syphilis] is an infectious disease.]

[tends to impeach⁸ [or prejudice⁹] [or discredit¹⁰] [or reflect unfavorably upon¹¹] a person in that person's trade or profession.]

[tends to subject a person to ridicule, contempt or disgrace.¹²]

On this issue the burden of proof is on the plaintiff. This means that the plaintiff must prove, by the greater weight of the evidence, seven things:

First, that the defendant [wrote]¹³ [printed] [caused to be printed] [possessed in “[t]he applicable statute . . . and the reported cases leave some lack of certainty as to what crimes may be designated and punished as ‘infamous.’” State v. Keen, 25 N.C. App. 567, 571, 214 S.E.2d 242, 244 (1975). In addition to those specified in cases decided under the statute, all felonies and certain other crimes qualify as “infamous crimes” for defamation purposes. See, e.g., State v. Mann, 317 N.C. 164, 170, 345 S.E.2d 365, 369 (1986) (“A crime is ‘infamous’ within the meaning of the statute if it is an act of depravity, involves moral turpitude, and reveals a heart devoid of social duties and a mind fatally bent on mischief.” (citation omitted), and Jones v. Brinkley, 174 N.C. 23, 25, 93 S.E. 372, 374 (1917) (Under an earlier version of N.C. Gen. Stat. § 14-3, “the test is not the nature of the punishment, but the nature of the offense charged. A charge of larceny is actionable per se, and ‘there is no distinction between grand and petty larceny in this respect.’” (citation omitted)); see also State v. Surles, 230 N.C. 272, 283-84, 52 S.E.2d 880, 888 (1949) (Ervin, J., dissenting) (“At common law, . . . an infamous crime is one whose commission brings infamy upon a convicted person, rendering him unfit and incompetent to testify as a witness, such crimes being treason, felony, and crimen falsi. This latter term means any offense involving corrupt deceit, or falsehood by which the public administration of justice may be impeded, such as perjury, subornation of perjury, forgery, bribery of witnesses, conspiracy in procuring non-attendance of witnesses, barratry, counterfeiting, cheating by false weights or measures, and conspiring to accuse an innocent person of crime.” (quoting Burdick, Law of Crimes, § 87)).

⁷See n.5 supra.

⁸If it is felt necessary to include an explanatory term for “impeach,” one or more of the suggested alternatives may be given. See generally, Badame v. Lampke, 242 N.C. 755, 757, 89 S.E. 2d 466, 468 (1955) (The statement “(1) must touch the plaintiff in his special trade or occupation, and (2) must contain an imputation necessarily hurtful in its effect on his business.”).

¹¹Maryland Pattern Jury Instruction—Civ 12:11 (“Injurious Falsehood Amounting to Defamation”) (defamatory statement includes one which “reflects unfavorably on [a] person’s business, reputation, business integrity or on [a] person’s profession or business”).

Third, that the statement was false.¹⁹

Fourth, that the defendant intended the statement [to charge the plaintiff with having committed an infamous crime] [charge the plaintiff with having an infectious disease] [impeach the plaintiff in his trade or profession] [subject the plaintiff to ridicule, contempt or disgrace].²⁰

Fifth, that the person other than the plaintiff to whom the statement was published reasonably understood the statement to [charge the plaintiff with having committed an infamous crime] [charge the plaintiff with having an infectious disease] [impeach the plaintiff in his trade or profession] [subject the plaintiff to ridicule, contempt or disgrace].²¹

Sixth, that, at the time of the publication, the defendant either knew the statement was false or failed to exercise ordinary care in order to determine whether the statement was false.²² Ordinary care is that degree of care that a reasonable and prudent person in the same or similar circumstances would have used in order to determine whether the statement was false.

Seventh, that the plaintiff, as a result of the publication, suffered a monetary or

Where the plaintiff himself [published] or, by his acts, caused the [publication] of a defamatory statement to a third person, the plaintiff cannot recover because there is not publication for which [the] defendant can be [responsible]. If the plaintiff consented to or authorized the [publication] of the defamatory statement, he cannot recover . . .”

economic loss.²³

Finally, as to this issue on which the plaintiff has the burden of proof, if you find, by the greater weight of the evidence, that the defendant [wrote] [printed] [caused to be printed] [possessed in [written] [printed] form] the following statement about the plaintiff: (Quote the alleged statement), that the defendant published the statement, that the statement was false, that the defendant intended the statement to [charge the plaintiff with having committed an infamous crime] [charge the plaintiff with having an infectious disease] [impeach the plaintiff in his trade or profession] [subject the plaintiff to ridicule, contempt or disgrace], that the person to whom the statement was published reasonably understood the statement to [charge the plaintiff with having committed an infamous crime] [charge the plaintiff with having an infectious disease] [impeach the plaintiff in his trade or profession] [subject the plaintiff to ridicule, contempt or disgrace], that, at the time of the publication, the defendant either knew the statement was false or failed to exercise ordinary care in order to determine whether the statement was false, and that the plaintiff, as a result of the publication, suffered a monetary or economic loss, then it would be your duty to answer this issue "Yes" in favor of the plaintiff.

If, on the other hand, you fail to so find, then it would be your duty to answer this issue "No" in favor of the defendant.
